Mentee Name - Ritu Chakraborty.

A student, named Ritu Chakraborty from 3rd Semester Program in Zoology cracked a state level Paramedical Examination during her graduation & decided to quit the graduation course.

In this matter, one of our faculty member Anwesha Bandyopadhyay took an initiative & convinced her to continue the graduation course with the paramedical course.

In this pandemic era both the courses were going online, keeping the paramedical course in mind, our classes were rescheduled for that student.

In this issue our teachers were concerned about her career as well as the course authenticity.

Paramedical course was not merging with the graduation course, because it was not a degree course, rather it was ^{like} a career guiding work-shop.

In this way without hampering ~~the~~ the career of her interest we solved her problem & convinced her to continue the main stream degree course.

My opinion: Ma'am, I've always had a liking and interest, since childhood in subjects and topics like crime, it's investigation and other allied policies and deeds related to it. Therefore, I wanted to pursue a career linked to it. So, I want take up "M.A. in Criminology", a subject that deals with the concept of crime, it's variations and range of deadliness in the modern world. Criminology is not available as a subject in Bachelor's, and needs another subject as a base...in order to be followed. And ma'am, the best way to understand any kind of crime is to analyze the desires that lead to it and the way it's handled in future, within the borderlines of society. A society is built up and based on a variety of social and cultural practices, but most importantly, its based on a definite type of political system...and if history is consulted, different kind of criminal malpractices differ mainly, due to the historical and political layout of a particular region. Other than that, any other acts that have been termed illegal and criminal are, in one way or other linked to a particular political entity and it's working in society, with varoius other social and anthropological affairs and events related to it. Therefore, studying political science serves me dual purposes, i.e., 1) Getting a better and much broader view of how the society functions, on a political threshold..both, on national and international levels and, 2) I get a firm base for studying the subject, I intend to as it's the most likely subject that's going to help me analyze the different fractions of crime and why a particular deed is recognised as a CRIME in the modern society, while the same deed was a normal affair in particularly different time period. Ma'am, these are the reasons, why I took up political science as a subject.

The reason behind chose Political Science as my Honours Paper because before few years from the 11th-12th... When i start Reading the Political Science as subject from that time i was quite interested to know that how the Politics work around the and how it's effects the international relations , how the government works any many more things ...

So i decided to take Political Science as my main paper and get the opportunity to understand it in brief.

And one more reason ,

I want to attend civil services exam atleast one time, that time it will help me a lot in my Preperation.

My opinion: Mam l have chosen political science as my Honers paper because what is the fundamental rights and duties in the india constitution? What offers and rights all citizens the written by Baba sahab Ambedkar in this constitution under the Drafting committee in assembly.so it's my Golden opportunities chosen political science subject to knowledge gave me how the political works and government's duties and decision making (the fundamental rights Artical 14) under the constitution. So I have decided LLB course in career that reason constitution study is my aim in life

Nazia Rashid has been ^{through} a very good and sincere student with a very good percentage at the first semester in the undergraduate course of English honours. But suddenly when she was about to take her third semester exam in 2020, a new novel coronavirus (COVID-19) started to lay havoc through out the world and India was not spared of its consequences. And the exam got postponed and a nationwide lockdown was announced to contain the outbreak of the virus. She suddenly had to face a new exam process with new conditions imposed on the students. She was thinking that probably she happened to lay behind her classmates and she was suffering from mental anxiety as the new process of examination was totally alien to her. So, she approached me and asked me several questions about the new online method of teaching and examination. From her words, I could sense her anxiety and mental fears, so I started to explain her about the exam process in simple language and made her feel comfortable about it and in the end she informed me that she was able to adapt to the new process of exam and completed her graduation in an easy way. She later, approached me ^{she, after completing her final semester exam in 2021,} and again expressed her heartfelt thanks ^{to me,} and also absolute trust she has towards the department.

Gopal Maddi, Sourav Mondal and Pritam Sardar - students of 6th Sem were not able to do online classes due to their network problem and also due to their financial problem it was not possible to do online classes because during the period of classes they usually engages in some earnings.

In that case we have suggested them that we will provide them all the study material through whatsapp and Google class room so that they can prepare and give the exam properly. We all teachers also helped them by giving books.

Rohit Das, a student of 6th Sem had a major financial problem as he belongs from a very poor family. He was not in a position to buy all the books of each semester. This is also because, due to covid 19 our students are facing problem in the transaction of books from the library as in this pandemic situation library is closed, so our students can't get any benefit and facilities from the library.

In that case, we gave him the books mostly according to his requirement and we all teachers gave him study material through WhatsApp and Google Class Room. In this way we tried to meet up his problem.
